FAQ

As for your question about purchasers of the New Kindle Fire, I think it will be fairly similar. The one thing that is not the same is the new model is instead of the 7" screen there is a 5" display. The Kindle Fire is 7" and is made for the United States. Amazon sells directly to European customers with the Kindle Europe, but they do not sell to Americans (as of the new Kindle Fire). Amazon.co.uk sells directly to Americans (see Amazon Kindle page). If you have not looked at the reviews of the Kindle Fire for sale on Amazon.co.uk, you might want to look at that before deciding to buy one. Hello - may I ask what to look for in a brand new box for the Kindle Fire? Does it require a special box? This is a new one as bought a few days ago. Click to expand... A good question. As for where to look for a good box, it would be a good idea to start with the best selling boxes, that is, the ones which are most popular. I have not figured out what the most popular boxes are for the Kindle Fire, but I do believe that the thin white boxes are the most popular. I haven't received it yet as it should arrive on the 4th of July. I just wanted to tell you about it and to see if you have received your new Kindle Fire already. I just wanted to mention that I bought mine from Amazon.co.uk, not Amazon.com, as you can see from the URL. When I search Amazon.com for Kindle Fire, I get all of the pages for the Kindle Fire that are available. I found the following information on Amazon.co.uk after looking for Amazon.com. I'm not sure if the information is right, but I thought you might be interested in it.
